Amery Warriors Class of 2025!

Celebrating the Joy of 'Mercy Watson' in 4K

If any of our 4K students have been asking their families for hot buttered toast or if they can have a pet pig, you can thank the 4K teachers and author Kate DiCamillo!

Mercy Watson is a series of children's books written by Minneapolis, MN author DiCamillo and illustrated by Chris Van Dusen. The chapter books feature Mercy, a pig who loves toast with "a great deal of butter on it."

In 2024, Lien Elementary librarian Annie Braaten organized a special Mercy Watson month for the entire elementary school. The 4K teachers and students enjoyed the books so much that they decided to revisit them this year.

Even though these are chapter books and might not be the first choice for read-alouds in 4K, the unique personalities of Mercy and her friends completely captivate our youngest Warriors, even without viewing the illustrations.

The students not only listen attentively, but they also connect with and adore the stories and the true-to-life characters. As a result, teachers often see them re-enacting the characters and stories during play time.

The celebration of Mercy Watson extended beyond the classroom as the Lien school nutrition staff treated the 4K students to hot-buttered toast, and books were delivered from the library in a jeep driven by a stuffed pig!

In the sixth book of the series "Something Wonky This Way Comes," Mercy, drawn by the scent of real butter from the popcorn, follows her nose to adventures at a drive-in movie. Amery 4K students joined in the fun by crafting cars from cardboard boxes and 'driving' to a movie in the library.

The students enjoyed taking turns pushing one another in their makeshift cars down the long hallways to the library (it was hard work!), and, of course, they enjoyed watching a movie together and munching on hot buttered popcorn, just like Mercy.

According to 4K teacher Kylie Black, the students truly connect with the book series and the characters. She has observed improvements in their story comprehension, vocabulary, and storytelling skills.

DiCamillo writes, "It doesn't take a rocket scientist to predict that when you put these elements together — a selfish pig, proud human parents of a selfish pig, an outraged neighbor, and a secretly delighted neighbor — and shake them up a bit, you will get an explosion.

An explosion was exactly what I was after. But I was surprised to discover that no matter how many explosions occur, all of them instigated by Mercy, Mr. Watson and Mrs. Watson continue to love her, continue to see her in the best possible light. I've come to believe that that is what love is all about: somebody insisting, mercifully, on seeing us as better than we truly are.

So these books, meant to celebrate the absurdity of life, also celebrate the amazing blessing of love. Will you be able to find room in your heart for a little love? A not-so-little pig? Will you be a friend to Mercy? I hope so." (from A Letter from Kate DiCamillo, mercywatson.com)

Mercy Watson

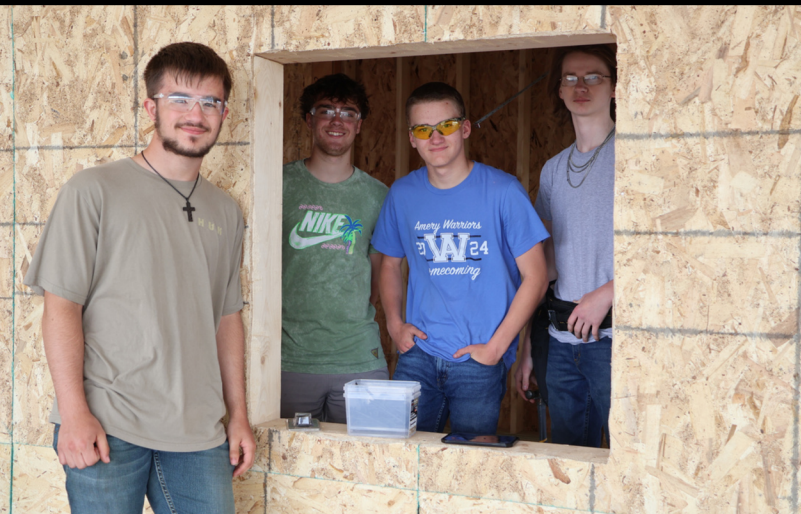

In the words of Mercy Watson character Leroy Ninker, "Yippeyioh!!"
(The kids loved saying this every time Leroy Ninker was brought up in the story.)

"The reason I love reading the Mercy Watson stories to my class is because it sparks their imagination and it nurtures a love of reading through fun adventures and lots of laughter!" – Darla Hughes, Amery 4K Teacher

"Reading Mercy Watson is such a calming time in my classroom; they never want me to stop reading!"
–Trish Meyers, Amery 4K Teacher

The AHS 'Understanding Construction' class is completing their spring term by building the concession stand in the new pavilion at the athletic stadium and building a storage shed for the Lien Elementary playground.

The Importance of Pollinators

Students Awarded Mini-Grant for Pollinator Garden

By 5th grade students Edith Greeson, Lydia Wittkop, Alice Lee, and Beckett Doerfler

This year we were given the chance to apply for a mini-grant for a pollinator garden at our school. The four of us researched all about pollinators, pollination, and monarch butterflies. We presented our research at a school board meeting.

We all became very passionate about protecting them. We wanted to create a space where pollinators can be safe and pollinate! We worked hard to teach others about all the amazing things pollinators can do. After all of our hard work, we got our grant. We think one of the most important things we learned is that pollination is a mandatory thing for humans and our planet. It creates a strong healthy ecosystem, full of life. Without a healthy ecosystem, our world would increase in pollution and global warming. We learned the importance of pollination and became very passionate about bees and butterflies. Protecting our planet and the things in it is crucial for future generations.

We Learned . . .

Have you ever wondered what the beautiful butterflies flying around your house, or what buzzing bees really can do? There are many reasons why we should get a pollinator garden. Protect the monarch butterflies and the bees. Without them we could not live! Pollinator gardens provide a wonderful place for pollinators to live and stay safe. If we protect them we can live too. Just imagine a beautiful garden for bees and butterflies to stay safe and live a happy and peaceful life.

Pollinator gardens have to have many important things, such as food, to be a place where butterflies and other pollinators live. When Monarch butterflies are caterpillars they rely on Milkweed leaves to live. When they turn into butterflies, they drink the nectar from the Milkweed flowers. You need other flowers in your garden too. Bugs, birds, and other butterflies will all come around with a variety. Flowers that are good are Zinnia, Milkweed, Purple Coneflower, Goldenrod, and Sweet Joe-Pye-Weed. We are also planting Coreopsis, Purple Coneflower, Blanket Flower, Butterfly Weed, and Black-Eyed Susans. If we didn't have pollinators, we wouldn't have the fruits and veggies that we need to live. When we come together to create the pollinator garden we will make a place for all pollinators to live and make a healthier Earth.

Monarchs and bees are very important to our world. Many of the food options we have today would not be here without these amazing pollinators. Every year monarch butterflies travel south for warmer weather. When they have to migrate, they go to Mexico, Florida, and California. Travelling from Wisconsin to these places is a long way to fly! But when Monarchs come back to warm weather, they lay eggs and new lovely orange and black butterflies enter our world. Bees, on the other hand, do not migrate. Instead, sadly, they die. Don't worry though! Each year the queen lays more eggs, and we have more wonderful striped black and yellow bees.

How do you know if a monarch is a male or a female? Males have a black spot on their hindwing, while females do not. Male bees tend to have longer, more curved antennae while females have more straight and short antennae. You want to attract both male and female pollinators to your garden.

Planting a pollinator garden is so important because it will not only provide kids with opportunities to learn and care for a necessity of our lives, but also create a healthy, thriving environment for bees, butterflies, bugs, and birds. Our schools will learn about how to care for all of life in the garden. A garden will help me, you, our school, Amery, Polk County, Wisconsin, the United States, and our whole global community!

Without the pollinators we would not be alive right now. One in three mouthfuls of food and drinks that we consume is only because of the amazing work of pollinators. By planting a pollinator garden on our school property we are providing students, staff, and community members with opportunities to help bees and monarch butterflies, but also ourselves. Can you imagine our school and community coming together to help bees and butterflies - a mandatory part of our lives? Every small act we do will impact the whole world. It will create a better place for us.

Congratulations to our RETIREEES!

Geography Comes Alive in the Middle School Makerspace

Recently, sixth-grade students completed a geography research project combined with a makerspace experience centered around countries in Asia. After researching an Asian nation and examining the Five Themes of Geography, students showcased their understanding through imaginative, hands-on projects.

They had the choice of creating:

- Laser-cut lanterns
- Layered paper art scenes
- Custom travel T-shirts
- Original flag designs
- 3D-printed coins
- Personalized buttons
- Green screen travel photos

Each project served as a unique reflection of the culture, landmarks, and geography of the country they explored. We are incredibly proud of their dedication, creativity, and curiosity!
